

Study for Newborns at Risk for Developing Allergies, Eczema and/or Asthma

What

A study to look at whether giving specific bacteria to infants with a small amount of breastmilk, formula, or milk product (cow's milk, goat milk, almond milk, soy milk, oat milk, etc.) may help prevent and treat allergic diseases

Who

Pregnant women and their healthy infants up to 7 days old who are at risk for developing allergic disease may be eligible. One of the baby's biological parents or siblings must have a history of asthma, seasonal allergies, atopic dermatitis (eczema) or food allergy.

Pay

Up to $ 600.00

Contact: 501-364-3031

ACHAllergyResearch@archildrens.org

<https://www.archildrens.org/research/clinical-trials>

